GLENN TO RESUME WORLD CRUISE ON "REBEL"

By Nani LeGalley
Fia Iloa High School Journalism Student

How would you like to sail around the world on a 35-foot trimaran -- even if you have never sailed before? That's what Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Glenn are doing on "Rebel." After waiting out the hurricane season here, they will continue their journey westward early next week.

It took the Glenns three and a half years to build "Rebel" and save enough money to finance the trip, but they say the experience has been rewarding. After sailing down the California coast from San Francisco, they left San Diego March 9, 1966, stopping first in the Marquesas Islands, which were their first contact with Polynesia. From there they went on to the Tuamotus and then to the Society Islands.

It was at Bora Bora that the Glenns had a near disaster when their trimaran was washed up onto a reef in the middle of the night. With the help of another vessel, they were pulled off the reef and towed to a dock for repairs.

While they were in Tahiti, the French Bastille Day celebration was underway, and the island of Tahiti was dirty and overcrowded with outsiders. Mrs. Glenn said that this was just one of Tahiti's faces, however; the other was beautiful scenery and friendly people.

After leaving the Society Islands, the Glenns arrived at small, interesting Palmerston Island, which is about 300 miles south of Samoa. It was originally settled by an Englishman named Palmerston -- and his three wives. Mrs. Glenn said the island has very little contact with the rest of the world; only two boats stop there each year.

The Glenns have been in Pago Pago since last October 1. Their primary reason for staying here was to wait out the hurricane season; they also used the stopover to stock up on supplies before traveling on.

Mrs. Glenn says that Samoa's beauty differs from that of other South Pacific islands she has seen so far. She says Samoa's unique feature is having so many different types of landscapes.

The Glenns plan to leave here early next week and sail to Manu'a then to Tonga for the coronation of King Tupou Taufa'ahau IV, then on the Fiji, New Caledonia, New Zealand, Australia and points west.

ISLAND-WIDE POWER SHUTDOWN SUNDAY MORNING

The Maintenance and Operations Division of the Public Works Department announced today that all power on Tutuila and Aunu'u will be shut off from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. Sunday.

The purpose of the shutdown is to connect wires linking the new 3,000-kilowatt power generator and switching facilities.

The power plant's small emergency generator will provide minimal power needed to operate the Communications Center and telephones during the shutdown.

DRIVE TO GET FOOTBALL GOING IN AMERICAN SAMOA PICKING UP SPEED

The drive to get the sport of American football going in American Samoa is picking up speed.

THE U.S.S. Kitty Hawk, berthed in Honolulu, has donated 36 pro-type football jerseys to the cause, according to Gayle Eckman, supervisor of plant facilities and services of the Department of Education.

Eckman said the jerseys were delivered by the U.S.S. Duluth on its recent visit here as part of Operation Handclasp. That goodwill project was originated by Chester (Bud) Cole, a former vocational teacher in American Samoa.

Cole, a retired U.S. Navy serviceman, now lives in San Diego, California. He originated the Samoan Maritime Cadet Corps.

The pro-type, short-sleeved jerseys are blue and white, trimmed in yellow. They were delivered by men of the U.S.S. Duluth to Commissioner of Safety Dewey Allen, who originated the idea of a football game between American Samoa and a high school in Honolulu.

Allen's plan is to have the game played in Honolulu Stadium some time in August.

Earlier this week, word came from Keene, New Hampshire that a sports enthusiast in that city was donating two footballs, valued at $60.

Newspaper stories of the proposed game were sent from American Samoa to Honolulu and to the mainland. Once the word gets around the mainland, Allen anticipates a deluge of equipment and help because of the novelty of the game.

Though football has never been played formally in American Samoa, the grid hopefuls here aren't wasting any time.

According to a budding sportswriter, Edwin Niko, at Mapusaga High School, the aspiring football players at that Mormon school are already hard at work.

Two teams have been formed and are practicing daily under the coaching of Brother Hintze.

Other boys, who hope to be one of the 25 chosen for the American Samoan schoolboy team, are working out at Utulei High School under the coaching of Ralph Moon, of the Department of Education.

FOUR DESTROYERS, SUBMARINE WILL PAY CALL AT PAGO PAGO, MAY 26

The port of Pago Pago is getting to be a real popular port of call for the United States Navy these days.

The U.S.S. Duluth had cleared port only a short time before news of more impending visits of naval vessels arrived in the office of Governor H. Rex Lee.

Four destroyers and a submarine are scheduled to arrive here all at once on May 26, according to dispatches from V.A. Lilly Jr., assistant chief of staff for operations, United States Pacific Fleet.

The four ships of Destroyer Squadron 19 are scheduled for a brief fuel stop here. They are the U.S.S. Gridley, the U.S.S. Turner Joy, the U.S. McKean, and the U.S.S. Maddox.

The submarine is the U.S.S. Blackfin, whose visit is scheduled for logistics and recreation.

According to Port Director Fred Uhrle, a fuel stop entails about a one-day visit, which will mean a good boost in the island's economy. The four destroyers will have a total complement of 79 officers and 1,193 enlisted men.

A destroyer is more than 500 feet long and displaces about 4,700 tons.

The submarine will have nine officers and 77 enlisted men aboard. They will be here for one or two days, Uhrle estimated.

It is not known at this time if there will be visiting privileges for the public.

FONG ASKS STUDY OF U.S. RELATIONSHIP WITH ITS TERRITORIES

Senator Hiram Fong (R-Hawaii) yesterday asked Congress to take a closer look at the association of the United States with its six territories, including American Samoa.

The Hawaii Republican asked formation of a special investigating committee to come up with suggestions of how the people of those territories can achieve more self government, while at the same time maintaining the federal government's defense and other national responsibilities.

The areas Fong wants studied are American Samoa, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, Okinawa and the Pacific Trust Territory.

Meanwhile, the United States Senate yesterday approved a bill which doubled the appropriation for the Pacific Trust Territory.

HONOLULU RAPID TRANSIT GETS TWO-WEEKS EXTENSION OF REQUEST

HONOLULU (UPI) - A federal court judge has granted Honolulu Rapid Transit Company a two-week extension in the hearing of a request for a preliminary injunction against Leeward Bus Company.

Judge Tavares granted the two-week continuance this morning after HRT Attorney Howard Hoddick made the request.

Meanwhile, HRT board chairman Harry Weinberg was reported to have offered to put the city's buses back into operation. However, he has yet to file an application with the State Public Utilities Commission.

Meanwhile, here is the top of the other news from Honolulu today:

The State Legislature begins its final day of the 1967 session today with a large number of measures yet to be taken up. Still to be acted upon are the operating budget, the capital improvements program, the constitutional convention, the land reform bill, traffic safety legislation, the proposed land exchange between the state and Mllingham interests, and the Senate's confirmation on various appointments of Governor Burns.

The State House last night passed the governor's capital improvements budget calling for $185 million in construction. The House version differed from the Senate's in that the Senate voted only $178 million in capital improvements spending. Included in the House version was $1 million for the new state prison at Pauwela, Maui, which the Senate had deleted.

WESTMORELAND SPEAKS TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON (UPI) - For the first time in 15 years a military commander has addressed a joint session of Congress.

General William Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam reported today on the newly escalated Viet Nam War.

The U.S. troop commander in Viet Nam appealed for resolute support on the home front for the American war effort in Asia.

Westmoreland said the Communists are "far from quitting" but unrelenting military, political and psychological pressure can bring victory.

The four-star general said the Communists believe America's "Achilles heel" is in its resolve to wage war. Said Westmoreland: "When a field commander does not have to look over his shoulder to see whether he is being supported, he can concentrate on the battlefield."

He concluded with this statement: "Backed at home with confidence, patience, determination and continued support, we will prevail in Viet Nam over Communist aggression."

The general's speech contained no surprises and no call for a new troop buildup. That matter was left to the privacy of his talks with President Johnson.

In his somber report on the war, he held out no promise of early or easy victory.

Present American strategy, he declared, is "the proper one."

Some members of Congress voiced their reaction to Westmoreland's appearance.

The welcome was warm, but critics of Viet Nam policy were not silent.

Senator Eugene McCarthy said the general's views were about what he expected, then added:

"The fact that he is being used in this way is still subject to serious question." He was talking about some criticism that Westmoreland has been brought home at this time to put a lid on policy criticism.

Senator George McGovern commented: "It is unprecedented and perhaps questionable to use military men to suppress honest differences."

But Speaker John McCormack said Westmoreland's speech has dispelled any doubt why the U.S. is in Viet Nam. And House GOP leader Gerald Ford said he fully supported the general's "call for unity among the American people during this crisis."

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, a Democrat, said he was "deeply impressed" by the general's remarks. He added:

"In the midst of this great debate it is well to see the views of a military man. This is in the best tradition of our national policy of free discussion."

Sen. Hiram Fong, a Republican, said the speech was what "the nation has been waiting for."

Fong said the general gave the nation "a clear picture of the issues, the objectives and progress and the problems before us."

Westmoreland "reiterated what the majority of Americans have known for a long time, that the result at home is the most potent weapon we have in this struggle," Fong said. "I hope all of our citizens will heed his message."

Westmoreland said that on his return trip to Saigon he will stop in Honolulu to confer with Adm. Ulysses S.G. Sharp, Commander of the Pacific Forces. Before returning to Viet Nam.

He would stop at Clark Field in the Philippines "for a few hours" with his family.

General Matthew Ridgeway, commander of U.N. forces in Korea in 1952, was the last military commander to address a joint session of Congress.
